Definitions:

A vehicle, whether new or used, must first be registered before it can be licensed to be used on the road.

Licensing refers to the process of issuing a licence to a vehicle to allow it to be used on the road.

Licensing is more commonly known as 'rego'.

Vehicles are licensed after they are registered; the registered person pays a licensing fee, and a licence label is attached to the vehicle.

Current transport legislation allows two types of vehicle licences: normal road use licence and exemption licence.

An exemption licence allows a vehicle to be excluded from the requirement to be continuously licensed.

Notes:

The information was extracted from the Motor Vehicle Register (MVR) and is current as at 15 January 2017.

The data is limited to registered vehicles only. The vehicles may or may not be currently licensed.

The data is limited to the following:
